BOSTON, MARCH 28.

Copy of a LETTER from the Honourable Houſe of Repreſentatives of this Province to the Right Honourable the Marquis of ROCKINGHAM.

Province of the Maſſachuſetts-Bay, January 22, 1768.

My Lord,

THE Houſe of Repreſentatives of this his Majeſty's Province have had the honour of your Letter of the 7th of May laſt, communicated to them by their Speaker, and thank your Lordſhip for your condeſcenſion, in the kind ſentiments you are pleaſed to expreſs of his Majeſty's good ſubjects of America and of this Province. The eſtabliſhing the y between Great-Britain and her Colonies, is a ſub- ich your Lordſhip has judged worthy of your parti- tention: And the exertions which you have made for important purpoſe, claim the moſt grateful acknow- of the Houſe. Your ſentiments are ſo nobly ex- ond the moſt diſtant partial conſiderations, as muſt h you as a patron of the Colonies, a friend to the conſtitution and the rights of mankind.

Lordſhip is pleaſed to ſay, that you will not adopt of arbitrary rule over the Colonies; nor do other- n ſtrenouſly reſiſt where attempts ſhould be made to- ff that dependency to which the Colonies ought to

Houſe, my Lord, have the honour heartily to join u in ſentiment; and they ſpeak the language of their ents. So ſenſible are they of their happineſs and in their union with and dependence upon the Mother y, that they would by no means be inclined to accept dependency if offered to them. But, my Lord, they your conſideration, whether the Colonies have not o fear ſome danger of arbitrary rule over them, when me power of the nation, have thought proper to im- on his Majeſty's American ſubjects, with the ſole reſs purpoſe of raiſing a revenue, and without their

Your p will allow us to ſay, that it is an eſſential right of ſubject, ingrafted into the conſtitution, or if your p will admit the expreſſion, a ſacred and unalienable right, quietly to enjoy and have the ſole diſpoſal of property. In conformity to this the Acts of the Parliament declare, that every individual in the realm, ſent in his Majeſty's high court of Parliament, by him- his repreſentative of his own free election. But, my it is apprehended, that a juſt and equal repreſentation ſubjects, at the diſtance of a thouſand tranſmarine s from the metropolis is utterly impracticable. Upon pinion, this Houſe humbly conceive, his Majeſty's predeceſſors, thought it equitable to form ſubordinate tive powers in America, as perfectly free as the nature ngs would admit, that ſo their remote ſubjects might a right, which thoſe within the realm have ever held , of being taxed only by repreſentatives of their own ection.

It is humbly ſubmitted to your Lordſhip whether ideas are well founded. And while this Province and olonies ſhall continue in your Lordſhip's judgment to be faithful and loyal ſubjects to his Majeſty, they rely upon it, that your happy influence will ever be employed, to promote the ſentiments of tenderneſs as well as juſtice in the parent country. Signed by the Speaker.

Province of the Maſſachuſetts-Bay, February 13, 1768.

SIR,

THE Houſe of Repreſentatives of this his Majeſty's Province, have ſtill the ſenſible impreſſions of gratitude upon their minds, for the ſignal and ſucceſsful exertions you were pleaſed to make for them when the liberties of the Colonies were in danger. And although they do not fall immediately under your care, in that department to which his Majeſty has been graciouſly pleaſed to appoint you; yet your known attachment to the rights of ſubjects, in their juſt extent, the conſtitution of the ſupreme legiſlative and the prerogative of the ſovereign, is a ſtrong inducement to the Houſe, when new grievances happen, to implore your repeated aid.

Conſcious of their own diſpoſition, they rely upon that candor which is a diſtinguiſhed mark of your character. And however they may have been repreſented to his Majeſty's Miniſters as undutiful, turbulent and factious, your ſentiments are too generous to impute the expreſſions of uneaſineſs under the operation of any particular Acts of the Britiſh Parliament to a peeviſh or diſcontented habit, much leſs to the want of a due veneration for that auguſt Aſſembly.

This houſe is at all times ready to recognize his Majeſty's high Court of Parliament, the ſupreme legiſlative power over the whole Empire: Its ſuperintending authority, in all caſes conſiſtent with the fundamental rules of the conſtitution, is as clearly admitted by his Majeſty's ſubjects in this Province as by thoſe within the realm: Since the conſtitution of the State, as it ought to be, is fixed, it is humbly preſumed that the ſubjects, in every part of the Empire, however remote, have an equitable claim to all the advantages of it.

It is the glory of the Britiſh Prince, and the happineſs of all his ſubjects that their conſtitution hath its foundation in the immutable laws of nature: And as the ſupreme legiſlative as well as the ſupreme executive derives its authority from that conſtitution, it ſhould ſeem that no laws can be made or executed, that are repugnant to any eſſential law in nature. Hence a Britiſh ſubject is happily diſtinguiſhed from the ſubjects of many other States, in a juſt and well grounded opinion of his own ſafety, which is the perfection of political liberty.

It is acknowledged to be an unalterable law in nature, that a man ſhould have the free uſe and ſole diſpoſal of the fruit of his honeſt induſtry, ſubject to no controul. The equity of this principle ſeems to have been too obvious to be miſunderſtood, by thoſe who framed the conſtitution; into which it is ingrafted as an eſtabliſhed law. It is conceived that this principle gave riſe in early time, to a repreſentation in Parliament; where every individual in the realm has ſince been and is ſtill conſidered by Acts of Parliament, as preſent by himſelf or by his repreſentative of his own free election: Conſequently the aid afforded there to the Sovereign, is not of the nature of a tribute but the free and voluntary gift of all.

The houſe ſubmit to your conſideration, whether his Majeſty's ſubjects of this Province, or any of them, can be conſidered as having been preſent in Parliament, when an Act of the fourth of his preſent Majeſty's reign, and another paſſed the laſt ſeſſion were made. If not, it ſeems to be concluſive, that as thoſe Acts were made with the ſole and expreſs purpoſe of raiſing a revenue out of America, the ſubjects here are in thoſe inſtances unfortunately deprived of the ſole diſpoſal of their property, and the honour and privilege of contributing to the aid of their Sovereign by a free and voluntary gift.

The people of this Province would by no means be inclined to petition the Parliament for a repreſentation. Separated from the mother country by a mighty ocean, and at the diſtance of three thouſand miles, they apprehend it is, and ever will be, utterly impracticable that they ſhould be equally repreſented there: They have always been conſidered by the nation as ſubjects remote: And his Majeſty's royal predeceſſors were graciouſly pleaſed to conſtitute by Charter a ſubordinate legiſlative in the Province, as it is conceived, with a view of preſerving to their remote ſubjects the unalienable right of a repreſentation. By this Charter the lands therein deſcribed are granted to the inhabitants in free and common ſoccage; and the Generally Aſſembly is inveſted with the power of impoſing and levying proportionable and reaſonable aſſeſſments, rates and taxes upon the eſtates and perſons of the inhabitants, for his Majeſty's ſervice, in the neceſſary defence and ſupport of his Government of the Province, and the protection and preſervation of the inhabitants; and of ordaining and eſtabliſhing all manner of wholeſome and reaſonable orders, laws, ſtatutes and ordinances, directions and inſtructions, either with or without penalties, as they ſhall judge to be for the good and welfare of the Province: And as a ſufficient check upon this ſubordinate power, which ſecures its dependence on the ſupreme legiſlative, no law can be made repugnant to the laws of England; and all laws that are made, are laid before his Majeſty, who at any time during three years after, diſannulls them at his royal pleaſure. All that is deſired by the people of this Province, is, that they may be reſtored to their original ſtanding: They may venture to appeal to the nation, that they have never failed to afford their utmoſt aid to his Majeſty whenever he hath required it; and they may ſay it without vanity, that in many inſtances from their ſettlement, they have given ſtriking proofs of their zeal for the honour of their Sovereign, and their affection for the Mother-State. Muſt it not then be grievous to free and loyal ſubjects, to be called upon in a manner which appears to them to diveſt them of their freedom, and ſo far to impeach their loyalty as to imply a miſtruſt of their chearful compliance with his Majeſty's royal requiſitions.

The Houſe alſo beg leave to ſubmit, whether the people can continue free, while the Crown in addition to its uncontroverted right of appointing a Governor, may appoint him ſuch ſtipends as it ſhall judge fit, at the expence of the people and without their conſent: And whether, while the Judges of the land, at ſo great a diſtance from the throne, the fountain of Juſtice, may be altogether independent on the people for their ſupport, it may not probably happen, that in ſome future time, the principles of equity may be ſubverted even on the Bench of Juſtice, and the people deprived of their happineſs and ſecurity.

The Houſe could add, that by the reſtraint laid upon the American trade by Acts of Parliament, which operates equally to the advantage of Great-Britain and the diſadvantage of this and the other Colonies, and the taxes which the inhabitants here eventually pay as the conſumers of the Britiſh manufactures, it ſhould ſeem to be beyond all the rules of equity, that theſe additional burdens ſhould be laid on them. But they would not treſpaſs upon your time and attention to the great affairs of the nation. They beg your candid conſideration of the unhappy circumſtances of the Province, and hope that your great intereſt in the national Councils, ſo far as ſhall appear to you to be juſt, will be employed on their behalf.

Signed by the Speaker.

From the BOSTON EVENING-POST, of April 4, 1768.

DIVIDE & IMPERA.
DIVIDE and TYRANIZE.

WOULD to Heaven I could hang a comet on every letter of this motto, to warn my countrymen of the danger that threatens their liberties, from the adoption of this maxim into the Britiſh counſels, reſpecting America.—When the Stamp-act had raiſed ſo univerſal an oppoſition, both in America and Great-Britain, that the execution of it was impracticable, it was repealed; and however joyous that event might be, yet in its effects it may be fatal. It is but too evident, that the enemies to our liberties have drawn from it this dangerous leſſon, to change the mode of that act, not the meaſures which dictated it; that is to ſap, not to form our freedom. To accompliſh this, two things were neceſſary; to divide us among ourſelves, and to divide us from thoſe who declared themſelves our friends in Great-Britain. In purſuance of this plan, implicit obedience was required in one colony only at firſt, to an Act of Parliament which touched their internal policy, and was effectually a tax. It was hoped the reſt of the colonies would not intereſt themſelves in the fate of one; but look with ſilence and unconcern on this violation of American freedom, in the Britiſh Parliament's diſpoſing of the property of the people of New-York, and ſuſpending their government.

Thus were we to be divided, and our liberties ſeized upon by ſuch degrees, as ſhould not alarm us into oppoſition, till it was too late; and as they well knew, that the majority of thoſe who oppoſed the Stamp-act in Great-Britain, did it not from any friendſhip to our liberties and rights (a ground of oppoſition confined to Mr. Pitt, and a few others) but from a perſuaſion that it would operate injuriouſly to their own intereſts; theſe were to be drawn off by the never-failing cord of ſelf-intereſt; for which purpoſe a duty was laid on thoſe Britiſh manufactures, which we were ſuppoſed to be under a neceſſity of uſing, for the purpoſes of a revenue; that is, to ſave the money of the people of Great-Britain, who muſt otherwiſe be taxed to furniſh this revenue. Well might Mr. Townſhend ſay, when he preſented this bill to the Houſe, that the Americans would raiſe no ſtatues to him; for he knew the baleful tendency of it to their deareſt rights. His words however, furniſh us a very ſalutary hint, which we ſhould not neglect. They manifeſt his expectation, that we ſhould feel its injuries, ſo as to make us execrate its author.

In this manner was the great plan of diviſion accompliſhed, in this manner our enemies have purpoſed our final ruin. For to ſpeak in the words of the great Sir Thomas Wentworth, on a ſimilar occaſion, in the time of Charles the Firſt, They have taken from us what? What ſhall I ſay? Indeed, what have they left us? They have reviſhed from us all means of ſupplying the King, and ingratiating ourſelves with him, taking up the root of all property. If the Parliament of Great-Britain, over which we have no earthly reſtriction, may give and grant our property for the purpoſe of a revenue, in whatever manner it be affected, the root of all our property is effectually taken up, and we at beſt are but tenants at will. But I deſiſt from any further expoſition of the unconſtitutional oppreſſion and injuſtice of theſe proceedings; taking it for granted, that no one can be unacquainted with what has been ſo often, and ſo fully ſet forth, particularly in the late excellent and unanſwerable LETTERS of the FARMER.

The evil being known, what ſhall be the remedy? I ſhall offer my ſentiments in a few words. Let us, as a Patriot James the firſt, petition and petition the King again, as we uſually do to God, and without ceaſing [illegible] as we have it. *

* [illegible] Parliam. P. 281.

Let us study to purſue the plan of theſe great men, who firſt formed the petition, and then the bill of rights. A noble Duke, in a late debate on American freedom, ſaid, the Americans were not mentioned in the bill of rights. Let us then frame a petition of rights, and never deſiſt from the ſolicitation, till it be confirmed into a charter of liberty.

Hoc parvi properemus et ampli
Si patriæ volumus ſi nobis vivere cari.

Let every colony contend which ſhall ſtand foremoſt in petitioning our moſt gracious Sovereign againſt the billeting act, and the ſuſpenſion of the Legiſlature of New-York; ſhewing that we conſider theſe as wounds to American liberties, thro' that of one colony. Let us petition againſt the giving away our money by the Britiſh parliament, as did the county of Durham, and the palatinate of Cheſter. Let us, in the mean time, by our frugality and induſtry in manufacturing for ourſelves, convince our adverſaries of their miſtake in one grand point, that we are under a neceſſity of uſing the manufactures of Britain. To accompliſh theſe noble and neceſſary purpoſes, let the people of every county inſtruct their members to petition, and let aſſociations be formed to promote manufactures; that we may manifeſt to all the world, how unanimouſly we are determined, both with hand and heart, to maintain our freedom, and fruſtrate the deſigns of thoſe, who, by dividing, would enſlave us.

MONITOR.

LONDON, MARCH 4.

A Letter from Paris, dated February 19, ſays, "It is aſſured that the Count de St. Germain has quitted the ſervice of the King of Denmark, becauſe he found that his Daniſh Majeſty had entered into a treaty with the Czarina and the King of Pruſſia; declaring that he could not, on any occaſion, bear arms againſt France, his native country; in conſequence of which laudable reſolution, the King of Denmark not only permitted him to reſign, but granted him a penſion of 60,000 livres, as a teſtimony of his ſatisfaction."

It is confidently given out, at the weſt end of the town, that one of the terms of the family and political reconciliation, which has lately taken place between two perſons, is a mutual engagement, that they ſhall both uſe their intereſt and utmoſt endeavours to procure an act of indemnity for a certain celebrated exile.

MARCH 7. Yeſterday three gentlemen, that are going abroad to preach the goſpel amongſt the Indians, were ordained prieſts by the Biſhop of London, at the chapel royal; and the ſame day two daughters of the Earl of Northington were confirmed at the ſaid chapel by his lordſhip.

Several Gentlemen of a celebrated club at the weſt end of the town aſſert, that by as nice a calculation as the nature of the circumſtance will admit, there will not be leſs than 25,600l. a day ſpent, for upwards of thirty days together (immediately ſucceeding the diſſolution of parliament) on and upon account of the general election in Great-Britain.

Some letters from Berlin adviſe, that the King of Pruſſia is going to lay claim to Royal or Poliſh Pruſſia; alledging that as his grand-father Frederick III. was crowned the firſt King of Pruſſia, in the year 1700, and was then ſatisfied with half the Pruſſian dominions, he, as his ſucceſſor, claims the whole according to his title, as alſo the revenue it has produced from the year 1700 to this time.

MARCH 11. We are informed from Rome, that a proteſt has been remitted to the Apoſtolic-chamber againſt the reſolutions taken in the Dyet of Warſaw, the preamble of which runs thus: "The Sieur Charles Littawor Chreptowatz, Marſhal of the Confederacy, and Nuncio at the Dyet for the Grand Dutchy of Lithuania, preferring Liberty to all temporal advantages and the Catholic Faith even to Liberty itſelf, proteſts againſt the Prince de Repnin, Ambaſſador from the Court of Ruſſia, and declares ſolemly before God, before all the world, and the kingdom of Poland in particular, before King Staniſlaus his Sovereign, and the other Kings and Princes, particularly the Empreſs of Ruſſia, that, that Prince having aſſembled in the kingdom of Poland a great number of Ruſſian troops, againſt the intention of the Empreſs his Sovereign, has abuſed the power intruſted to him, to the prejudice of the honour of her Imperial Majeſty, in order to oppreſs the orthodox Catholic Faith, and to deſtroy and overthrow the laws, rights, prerogatives and liberties of that kingdom, &c.

The court of Liſbon is taking meaſures for more efficaciouſly protecting its merchant ſhips againſt the depredations of the Barbary corſairs, by eſcorting them both in and out of port, to a further latitude than uſual.

A tapeſtry manufactory, after the manner of the Gobelins in France, is going to be eſtabliſhed at Liverpool, by ſome principal merchants there.

They write from Breſt, that they had received advice of no leſs than four French Guinea ſhips having been lately loſt or taken by the natives on the coaſt of Africa.

By private letters from Paris we learn, that the army which ſurrounded that city, is now withdrawn, and that the order prohibiting any one to leave the kingdom, without ſpecial leave and the ſtricteſt examination, is revoked.

MARCH 14. Laſt Saturday's Gazette contain a proclamation by the King, dated the 11th inſtant, for diſſolving the parliament, and declaring the calling of another, wherein the writs ordered to be iſſued out for the latter purpoſe, are directed to bear teſte the 19th inſtant, and to be returnable on Tueſday the 19th of May next: Alſo his Majeſty's proclamation for the electing the ſixteen peers of Scotland, in which all peers in that kingdom are commanded to meet at Holy-Rood houſe in Edinburgh, on the 26th of April next, to chuſe the ſixteen peers to ſit and vote in the houſe of peers. Likewiſe his Majeſty's order in council for diſſolving the convocations of Canterbury and York, and electing new members for them, the writs for which are to bear teſte the 14th inſtant, and to be returnable the 13th of May next.

MARCH 16. It is ſaid, that Sir George Macartney is to be one of his Majeſty's Poſt-Maſters-General.

This morning came on at Guildhall, the election of four members to repreſent this city in parliament. The candidates were, the Right Hon. Thomas Harley, Lord Mayor, Sir Robert Ladbroke, Knt. Sir Richard Glyn, Bart. Mr. Alderman Beckford, Mr. Alderman Trecothick, Mr. Deputy Paterſon, and John Wilkes, Eſq.—After holding up of hands the Sheriffs declarded the majority to be for Sir Robert Ladbroke, Mr. Alderman Beckford, and John Wilkes, Eſq; but the Sheriffs being doubtful which gentleman had the fourth ſhew of hands, they put up the right Honourable the Lord Mayor, Sir Richard Glyn, Alderman Trecothick, and Mr. Paterſon, a ſecond time, and the Sheriffs declared the majority to be in favour of the Lord Mayor: Upon which a poll was demanded in favour of Sir Richard Glyn, Mr. Alderman Trecothick, and Mr. Paterſon.

Previous to the holding up of hands the Livery was addreſſed by the ſeveral candidates, among whom Mr. Alderman Beckford, Mr. Alderman Trecothick, and John Wilkes, Eſq; ſpoke for near half an hour each, which gave great ſatisfaction, particularly the latter.—It is thought there never was a fuller hall.

MARCH 17. The following paragraph is copied from the other papers.—A correſpondent who dates his letter from the Smyrna coffee-houſe, and ſigns VERAX, ſays, "The affair with reſpect to Mr. W——'s pardon, ſo far as I have been able to learn, has no other foundation than this: A noble D—— delivered to a great perſonage a letter from W——, which he condeſcended to read, and afterwards retired for a few minutes, in order, as ſuppoſed, to ſhew it to his illuſtrious conſort; he then returned again into the apartment where the letter was firſt given him, but did not ſignify either any pleaſure or diſpleaſure on account of the letter; ſo that his taciturnity on this occaſion was conſidered by W——'s friends as a favourable omen; and upon this they have puſhed him on to declare himſelf to repreſent the city of London in parliament; with regard to which ſtep our different opinions in this part of the town may be known, as uſual, by our wagers; ſome have laid that Mr. W—— will be certainly choſen, others that he will be in durance vile before the expiration of the week."

Mr. WILKES's Addreſs to the Livery of LONDON, on the 16th of March, 1768.

GENTLEMEN,

"I am happy to find myſelf once more among the friends and patrons of liberty. This day makes me glorious amends for the rigour of a long and unmerited exile; in which the only conſolation remaining to me was, that from my ſufferings you had an uninterrupted enjoyment of your moſt invaluable rights and privileges. Since the exertion of my firmneſs in an important moment, no miniſter has once dared to iſſue a general warrant againſt your perſons, or ſign an order for the ſeizure of your papers, and I truſt that ſuch deſpotiſm will never be again exerted over the free ſubjects of this country.

"I ſtand here, gentlemen, a private man, unconnected with the great, and unſupported by any party. I have no ſupport but you: I wiſh no other ſupport: I can have none more certain, none more honourable.——If I have the happineſs gentlemen, of being returned to parliament by your favour, I ſhall be ready to pay the greateſt deference to the ſentiments of my conſtituents on every occaſion, and ſhall dedicate myſelf to their ſervice, by promoting to the utmoſt of my abilities the trade and commerce of this great metropolis, by which alone it can maintain the firſt rank it now enjoys, and I hope, with it's liberties, will ever enjoy."

MARCH 19. It is ſuppoſed that 700,000 fowls upon an average, to ſay nothing of other articles, are now daily conſumed in the City of London.

Computation of the Number of People, which Guildhall will contain.

The Liverymen of London are ſuppoſed to be about eight thouſand. Guildhall is fifty-four yards in length, and eighteen in breadth: The number of ſquare yards is therefore 972, without including the ſtone ſeats. When ſoldiers are drawn up in cloſe order, a yard ſquare is allowed to every four men. According to this computation, Guildhall will contain 3888 perſons, perhaps 4000.

At the Election of a Lord Mayor, in the year 1739, when Sir George Champion, although next the chair, was ſet aſide for having voted for approving the Convention with Spain, the hall was then thought to be as full as it could poſſibly be; and ſome conjectured that very near all the Livery was there. In this caſe, they muſt have ſtood twice as cloſe as the military in cloſe order.

Nine equal circles, it is ſaid, may be deſcribed in a ſquare yard without cutting each other, which circles will be three feet and nearly two inches each in circumference. If this circumference is ſufficient for a perſon to ſtand in, then nine people may be included in a yard ſquare; allowing eight perſons, then the hall will hold 7776.

We hear that the friends of Mr. Wilkes are highly pleaſed at the deluſion of his enemies, in ſuppoſing there are very little hopes of his ſucceſs, by the poll of the two paſt days; but his well-wiſhers, and the loyal adherents to liberty, may be aſſured that the reaſon is owing to the immortal Number 45; the generality of his friends having determined to form themſelves into bodies of that number, and bring up the rear with LIBERTY TRIUMPHANT!

Yeſterday the maſter of a public-houſe by the ſide of the Fleet-market, hired the hackney coach No. 45, and ſix black horſes with long tails; on the top of which was a man with a flag, and another behind the coach, who held the end of it, with blue cockades in their hats; and in this manner he was carried to Guildhall, accompanied in the coach by a Fruiterer in the Fleet-market, and other friends, and each of them gave ſingle votes for John Wilkes, Eſquire. From Guildhall they proceeded in the ſame manner over London and Weſtminſter bridges in their return home, followed by a number of people, huzzaing, and crying out, "Wilkes and Liberty."

Voltaire, ſpeaking of the Engliſh nation, ſays, "the people of this iſland are much ſubject to madneſs; but at the end of every ſeven years the diſeaſe is epidemical."

Private letters from Liſbon mention, that the Portugueſe miniſtry have at length reſolved to redreſs all the grievances of the Engliſh merchants, in his moſt Faithful Majeſty's dominions, according to the true ſpirit of the treaties ſubſiſting between the two crowns.

It is currently reported at the weſt end of the town, that in caſe Mr. Wilkes does not get a ſeat in the Britiſh ſenate, an invitation will be given him to go to Dublin, to offer himſelf a candidate for that city, at the enſuing general election there, along with the famous Dr. Lucas, who is juſtly ſtiled the Wilkes of Ireland.

MARCH 24. Yeſterday the Hon. Sir Joſeph Yorke, his Majeſty's Ambaſſador at the Hague, who lately arrived from that place, had the honour of having a long conference with his Majeſty after the breaking up of the council at court.

At the final cloſe of the poll at Guildhall, yeſterday afternoon, the numbers ſtood as follow: The Lord Mayor, 3729. Sir Robert Ladbroke, 3678. Mr. Alderman Beckford, 3402. Mr. Alderman Trecothick, 2957. Sir Richard Glyn, 2823. John Paterſon, Eſq; 1769. John Wilkes, Eſq; 1247.

The common cryer proclaimed the poll ended, and ſummoned a common hall to be holden to-morrow morning, at nine o'clock, for the ſheriffs to make their declarations.

Mr. WILKES's Speech to the Livery of London, on the 23d of March, 1768.

"GENTLEMEN and FELLOW CITIZENS,

"The poll being now finiſhed, I return my ſincereſt thanks to thoſe diſintereſted and independent friends, who have ſo generouſly and ſteadily ſtood forth in my favour. The want of ſucceſs, out of your power to command, has not in the leaſt abated my zeal for your ſervice: You cannot be unacquainted with the various circumſtances which have contributed to it. My friends were of opinion that I ſhould wait the diſſolution of the laſt flaviſh and venal —— of ——, while the other candidates had been for many months ſoliciting your intereſt. Miniſterial influence, aſſiſted by private malice, has been exerted in the moſt arbitrary and unconſtitutional manner, and by means of the baſeſt chicanery and oppreſſion.

"But, though diſappointed, I am not in the leaſt diſpirited: On the contrary, I reflect with pride and gratitude on the many inſtances of regard and affection I have received from the Livery of London.

"I beg leave to make my beſt acknowledgments to the ſheriffs, who have ſhewn the utmoſt candor and impartiality during the election, accompanied with a dignity of character becoming their ſtation in this great metropolis.

"And now gentlemen, permit me to addreſs you as friends to liberty, and freeholders of the county of Middleſex, declaring my intention of appearing as a candidate to repreſent you in parliament, and ſtill hoping by your means to have the honour of being uſeful to you in the Britiſh ſenate.

"I recommend it to you in the ſtrongeſt manner, to exert yourſelves to preſerve the peace and quiet of this great city."

To the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Middleſex.

"GENTLEMEN,

"The day of election of members to repreſent this county in the enſuing parliament being fixed for Monday the 28th inſtant, we take the firſt opportunity to acquaint you therewith; and at the ſame time permit us to repeat our moſt grateful acknowledgments for the ſignal mark of your favour ſhewed us at the general meeting on the 27th of January laſt, by giving us your unanimous thanks for our paſt conduct, and for your unanimous nomination of us as joint candidates to repreſent this county in the enſuing parliament: We therefore beg leave to intreat the continuance of your favour and ſupport on the day of election, which will be eſteemed as the higheſt honour conferred on, Gentlemen, your moſt faithful and devouted ſervants, WM.
